

WXPR Public Radio is very excited about the potential of a second channel within HD Radio. We support FCC making rules that move the broadcast industry and the electronics industry toward a future similar to that described in NPR's Tomorrow Radio Project. That future will allow for a greater level of service to American listeners. If a public radio station in a city of license with a population of fewer than 8,000 people can look forward to making the most of HD Radio, then please consider doing your utmost to see that second channel service happens.
